The current internationally accepted value for the imperial and US customary inch is exactly 25.4 millimetres. This is based on the international yard of exactly 0.9144 metres adopted through the international yard and pound agreement in 1959. Before the adoption of the international inch various definitions were in use. In the United Kingdom and other countries of the British Standard Yard, the inch was defined in terms of the Imperial Standard Yard. The US adopted the conversion factor 1 metre = 39.37 inches by an act in 1866, and in 1893 Mendenhall ordered

Conceived as an exploration of geometrical type designs of the early 20th century, Canaro developed into a font of that period with a modern twist. In addition to the classic shapes, the font includes a set of alternative letter shapes, ligatures, and figures, all of which are designed to create legibility in small text sizes. Typographic elements like alternative lettershapes, ligatures, and figures, all of which are designed to create legibility in small text sizes. BONOBO GFXMOUNTAIN
